United Way Elects Officers, Six Directors to New Terms

Anchorage AK – William D. “Bill” Falsey, senior counsel at Birch, Horton, Bittner, & Cherot, was elected chair, and Alex McKay, vice president of programs at the Rasmuson Foundation was elected vice chair of the United Way of Anchorage board of directors.

Falsey and McKay were elected at the board’s annual meeting on January 19. The directors also elected Laurie Butcher, senior vice president of finance at Alaska Communications, as treasurer and Beth Stuart, partner at KPMG, as secretary. Both Butcher and Stuart were elected to third three-year terms.

During its meeting, the board elected new member Dr. John Finley, cardiologist at the Alaska Heart Institute, to the board for his first term.

Charles Fedullo, senior vice president at Strategies 360 and Daniel Mitchell, chief financial officer at Cook Inlet Region, Inc., were elected to second three-year terms.

David Wight, longtime board member and former CEO of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., was elected to a fourth three year term.

“Communities across Anchorage continue to face unprecedented challenges thanks to the uneven effects of the pandemic,” said Clark Halvorson, president of United Way. “We are grateful to community leaders who step up to provide leadership and vision for the United Way of Anchorage. Thank you to Natasha Pope with First National Bank Alaska for her tireless work during her two years as chair of the board. I look forward to working closely with Bill to effectively address our community’s pressing issues in education, health and financial stability.”
